

Bring HOLLYWOOD To Your HOMETOWN

Here's how:

BIG IDEA to BEAT OUTLINE In a WEEKEND is an intimate and interactive two and a half day seminar. Friday evening from 7pm to 9:30pm, Saturday and from 9am to 10pm including a film screening that evening, pizza and popcorn included! Sunday is 9am to 7pm.

The seminar is limited to 10 writers so everyone receives a great deal of individualized attention and feedback.

The cost is $395 per person. All meals are included for an added $40.

Be the "Guy on the Ground" who sets it all up: Promote the seminar to fellow writers and local screenwriting groups and find the location. If you fill the class, you receive half-off the tuition or a free 1½-hour script consult, in person or via phone. If you partner with someone to set it up, each person gets $100 off tuition.

When an Organization sets up the seminar: The organization promotes the seminar to members, to local media and throughout the community. A 2-hour Thursday evening talk followed by Q & A can be arranged and made available to all members or to the public to promote the group. The organization provides the appropriate space for the event and seminar. The evening can be offered free to members or used as a fundraiser to support the organization's efforts.

What we need: We look for a space where we can comfortably sit in a circle on chairs and/or couches. This can be a classroom, a business conference room, a nonprofit that would like to receive a modest donation or a hotel suite, sound stage or private home.

A private home is actually an excellent setting for the relaxed atmosphere of this seminar. We will also need a DVD player and a large or flat screen TV.
